Vidyo for Libraries and Community Services

What are Your Needs?

Youth and adults go to the local library for much more than just checking out books! Modern libraries are vital community resource centers that provide access to children's programs, literature, technology, educational services and more.

- Would you like to enhance the use of existing library computers and connect patrons to other social and educational services?

- Would you like to supplement your educational offerings with virtual fieldtrips?

- Would you like to more easily connect your citizens with each other and local leaders to improve civic engagement?

- Do your librarians need access to consistent, high quality professional development?

At Issue	The Vidyo Solution
The need to use existing library space and technology efficiently	Vidyo is a powerful add-on to existing library technologies, increasing their usefulness and effectiveness as tools for a more connected and collaborative community.
The need to enhance education programs with engaging content	Libraries want to engage as many patrons as possible in activities, and Vidyo can help. For example, Vidyo can connect library audiences young and old to published authors for story time or author chats, or to places of literary significance via virtual fieldtrips.
The need to connect library patrons with social services and local and regional support services	Library patrons may wish to access multiple social services but have limited access to transportation. Rather than forgoing these services or spending all day travelling around town, they can gain access to case managers, nutrition education, WIC programs, workforce assistance and other services all from one location – their library – via Vidyo.
The need to provide librarians with all necessary training and professional development	Librarians can use Vidyo to access professional development content, share resources and expertise, and help each other improve direct services in every community.
