

Vidyo for Courts and Corrections

What are Your Needs?

- Are your courts hampered by scheduling conflicts as judges travel through a circuit?
- Can you easily provide medical assessments and counseling services to inmates onsite?
- Are inmate transport requirements taxing your resources?
- Are you able to provide continuing education and training to all personnel?
- Do you need to reduce transfer of contraband in visitation situations?

Today's courts and correctional systems face budget pressures, increasing case loads, rising inmate populations and public safety concerns—making it difficult to achieve operational efficiency. Increasingly, they are turning to video conferencing to improve efficiency across the board. In this environment, video communications technology must be seamless, reliable and secure or it won't be adopted at all.

The Vidyo Solution

The need to expedite court cases through the system

Vidyo can improve court system process efficiency by enhancing communication and information sharing among courts and other agencies while reducing logistics and travel requirements. Remote arraignment proceedings, depositions, expert witness testimony and other procedures can be handled reliably and securely via Vidyo.

The need to connect securely with a variety of outside services addressing inmate needs

Vidyo integrates with vertical market solutions enabling secure remote access to outside medical, legal, law enforcement and other resources to support medical diagnosis and treatment, pre-release processes, inmate rehabilitation and education, parole hearings and more.

The need to maximize correctional system resources

Workers may need immediate short-term job training to gain a specialized skill or stay in compliance with changing job requirements. With Vidyo, they can engage in distance learning programs they need, without delay, while employers save time and cut operating costs.

The need to provide court and correctional system staff with access to career-building opportunities

Employees can pursue professional development programs after work hours, including self-paced study. Programs powered by Vidyo may be accessed in real-time or as recorded sessions on-demand, using everyday mobile and desktop devices and a simple internet connection.
